

"It allows us to share our thinking and our creativity about finding ways to solve the healthcare problems that we're faced with. It's an open dialogue, it's protected, and there are opportunities for us to really get into the grassroots conversations about what problems exist, and how we might solve them together."

Anthony Slonim, MD, DrPH, CPE, FACPE
President and Chief Executive Officer at Renown Health

Overview

The American Journal of Managed Care's ACO and Emerging Healthcare Delivery Coalition is the premier alliance for innovative leaders, focused on leveraging best practices and key learnings to craft executable solutions. The Coalition develops solutions beyond process and policy to encourage innovation in this dynamic market. The Coalition provides the platform for diverse stakeholders to collaborate and interact regarding current and evolving healthcare delivery models in order to build strategies and develop enduring materials that will ensure continuous engagement for all Coalition members.

Members include:

- ACO Providers and Leaders
- Payers
- Integrated Delivery Networks
- Group Purchasing Organizations
- Specialty and Retail Pharmacy
- National Quality Organizations
- Pharmacy Benefit Managers
- Pharmaceutical Organizations
- Academia
- State Associations
- Patient Advocacy
- Health Policy Research

The ACO and Emerging Healthcare Delivery Coalition creates an opportunity to engage unique perspectives from industry leaders with real-world examples on the vast array of issues relating to emerging delivery models. The Coalition provides numerous opportunities for networking and collaboration on topics such as data/technology, cost/financial, quality, patient experience, transitions in care, care coordination, quality measures, outcomes, and population management.

Feedback from past attendees included:

- “Great format of presentations and panels”
- “Exchanges and opportunities to connect with industry leaders”
- “Best content in 20 years in the healthcare industry”
- “Diverse audience representing all perspectives”
- “Strategically organized, relevant content”
